HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

OUTCOME OF BATTERY PARK SELLING STAKES DUPLICATES LAST YEAR'S RESULT.

Grosvenor, Tarts and Sherwood Finish One-Two-Three, as in 1913, and Time Likewise Is Exactly the Same—Double for W. G. Yanke.

Charleston, S. C., January 7.—The running of the Battery Park Selling Stakes, featuring today's card at Palmtoe Park, developed a remarkable incident from the fact that the finish was exactly the same as in a preceding running of this stake March 22 of last year, when Grosvenor, Tarts and Sherwood came in the finish in the order named. Even the time for the six furlongs, 1:15 1/2, corresponded exactly as for last year's running. Grosvenor was an outsider in the betting and came from behind to wear down Tarts in the last sixteenth of the race. His victory this afternoon was more impressive than that of last year, for he won by a greater margin.

Joe Deibout, because of his supposed pull in the weights, was the favored one for the race, but he was never formidable and finished far back. The contention was always between Tarts, Sherwood and Grosvenor. The winner's connections profited handsomely by his victory.

W. G. Yanke scored a double during the afternoon when Oakland and Old Ben, both favorites, showed the way to the finish in their respective races. Old Ben raced far back in the early running in his customary style, but when settled fully for the stretch drive, he came with a cyclonic rush from last place to dispose of Deposit handsily in the last sixteenth and win by a big margin. After the finish it was the unanimous opinion that, barring accident, he is certain to win the rich Palmtoe Park Derby.

Jockey Kenneth Karriek, who will ride for the Messrs. Hitchcock in France this season, was an arrival today from Aiken, S. C., where his father, W. H. Karriek, is wintering twenty-two horses, the property of Messrs. H. K. Knapp, F. R. Hitchcock and S. L. Parsons. Sixteen of the horses are two-year-olds. The other division includes Yankee No. 10, Spryte, Train, Beethoven, Dakota and Keesion. The last named is at present receiving lessons in racing with a view to racing exclusively over the jumps. All the horses are wintering in grass shape and it is the present plans of the trainer to inaugurate his racing campaign for this season at Lexington and then ride to Louisville for the meetings at Douglas Park and Churchill Downs before sending the string to Belmont Park.

Representative Miller of Richmond County, a staunch supporter of racing, was an interested visitor at the course this afternoon. He complimented the management and the officials on the quality of the sport and the excellent order which was maintained.

R. D. Williams, acting as agent for J. L. Holland, lodged a protest with the stewards against jockey Johnny McTaggart riding Grosvenor in the Battery Park Selling Stakes, in which the Holland stable also had a starter. McTaggart signed to ride for the Holland stable during the remainder of the Charleston meeting beginning January 11, but previous to this, H. Penny, agent for McTaggart, had arranged with A. Weber for the boy to ride Grosvenor in this stake. The officials contended that as the arrangement with McTaggart was made prior to the signing of the Holland agreement, the former was entitled to the lad's services.

M. C. Moore has sold Austin Sturtevant to C. Corsten, a local man.

Among today's arrivals were William McLean, of Chicago, and J. Flaherty and J. Hendricks, of New York. The latter purchased Cockspar from J. O. Talbot and turned the horse over to Archie Zimmer to train. Hendricks was the former owner of the filly Ann Tilly, which was taken out of a selling race last week.

Campeon was jumped on during the running of the Battery Park Selling Stakes and came down.

H. G. Bodwell claimed Leon Shark after the latter was beaten in the third race.

W. G. Yanke, George North and James Jackson withdrew from the ranks of the favorites today and their places were taken by Al Hauf and Frank Bain.

Jockey Geronde has employed an attorney to take care of his interests following his disagreement with H. G. Bodwell, his contract employer. He will endeavor to break the contract.

R. J. Powers, who has been training the horses of J. J. Brown at Charleston, will in future handle his own horses.

The following were the best trials shown at Palmtoe Park this morning:

Ann Tilly—Three-quarters in 1:19.
Elia Bryson—Three-quarters in 1:19.
Emerson Cochran—Three-quarters in 1:18 1/2.
Henry Hutchison—Three-quarters in 1:18 1/2.
Jabot—Half mile in 53.
Laura—Five-eighths in 1:04 1/2.
Palatquin—Five-eighths in 1:04 1/2.
Phylous—Half mile in 51.
Snowflakes—Three-quarters in 1:19 1/2.
Ta Nun Da—Three-quarters in 1:19 1/2.
W. W. Clark—Three-quarters in 1:20.
Youghie—Seven-eighths in 1:34.
Young Emblem—Seven-eighths in 1:31.

BROOKFIELD KEEPS ON WINNING.

Horse Purchased in Kentucky by J. H. Mead Scores Again at Juarez.

El Paso, Tex., January 7.—Brookfield, acquired in Kentucky by J. H. Mead from E. R. Bradley at small cost last fall, continues his winning form. The little gelding defeated a good band of racers here today in the Babcock Handicap over the seven-furlong route. He showed gameness and courage in racing Vested Rights into submission, then shaking off Zim and Colonel Marchmont in a hard drive that lasted through the final furlong of the race.

Belle of Bryn Mawr turned up the winner in the final race of the day at one mile. Butter Ball, on the strength of his recent good races, was selected by the talent as the likely winner. He received an incompetent ride from jockey Gentry. The horse was full of a desire to run in going down the backstretch and Gentry was swinging him all over the track under a stout pull, then got him into several pockets in the final quarter, with the result that he finished unplaced.

F. M. Hopper, the owner of several horses now racing here, arrived from his home in Elk City, Okla., today, to remain for the rest of the meeting.

After being taken to the hospital it was discovered that jockey Frank Stevens had a fractured collar bone, which he received when Amos fell yesterday.

Jockey Taplin was suspended for ten days by the stewards for resorting to rough riding in two different races during the afternoon.

Ike Striker, owner of Little Marchmont and other horses, who has been confined in an El Paso hospital suffering with pneumonia, is reported to be rapidly recovering.

The ten-days suspension of jockey Anthony Neylon will expire Thursday, when the boy will resume riding. He is the best rider at Juarez and his return to the saddle once more will be hailed with satisfaction by patrons of the track.

STATISTICS OF JUAREZ RACING TO THE END OF 1913

During the thirty-three days of the Juarez meeting between its opening on November 27 and the close of the year 198 races were run and $70,705 was distributed in stakes and purses, representing a daily average of $2,144.39. J. N. CAMDEN POINTS OUT THAT LOSS OF BREED WOULD BE CALAMITY.

Kentucky State Racing Commissioner Sketches Origin of Breed and Necessity of Preserving It Before Convention at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., January 7.—Johnson N. Camden, of Versailles, wealthy capitalist and member of the Kentucky State Racing Commission, was the principal speaker at a great gathering of farmers and stockmen at the Kentucky State University today. Mr. Camden's subject was "The Economic Value of the Thoroughbred Horse and His Future." The address made an excellent impression on the members of the convention and is expected to be of benefit to the interests of the turf in this country. Mr. Camden spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I wish to express my pleasure in being with you today, and the gratification I feel in seeing such a representative gathering as this. It inspires courage and hope for the future. I, myself, believe in organization if things are to be worked out and accomplished on an extensive scale. Bankers, lawyers, physicians, commercial men have their organizations, their learned codes of ethics, and they meet at conventions to discuss their progress and welfare. I think that horsemen should do likewise if they are alive to their own interests. I take it that there is in this meeting a sub-conscious, if not a formulated desire or purpose for organization and co-operation. Personally, I feel that I would have little interest to say to you if I were not permitted to touch on this feature.

It is difficult to predict the future of any subject without studying and being in some degree familiar with its past. There is one point which is readily grasped by the American mind and which I wish to emphasize. It is my belief that it would be an economic crime if an uncompromising, unheeding management of racing makes it possible for fanaticism to banish the thoroughbred from this continent. In order to arrive at a rational comprehension of this great subject, and to understand the importance of the horse in the development of civilization and advancement of civilization, and to realize clearly the bond that exists between man and his most faithful servant, it is necessary as Kipling would say to go "back of the beyond." In the beginning of things, the horse was man's first useful servant.

If you will allow me to indulge in speculation, I feel quite sure in saying that the first groping towards establishing a stud book was made by the Arabs. In the dawn of civilization when might was right and pillage, plunder and rapine the accepted order of the day, the existence of the Arabs, by reason of their nomadic life—herd and flock—made it necessary to have a record of their stock, and to realize that other—always seeking grazing for their flocks, depended upon the fleetness, soundness, docility and stamina of their horses. Their horses shared with their family the shelter of their tents.

In those days vehicles were not known, and the Arab steed was the perfection of the saddle and the racing horse. Life or death depended upon his superior qualities. The supremacy and dominion of one tribe over the others depended upon how it was mounted. So you may be sure that while not only worldly goods, fame and reputation, but life itself depended upon the horse, the best of his strength, fleetness and good manners were constantly recorded, and nature's inexorable law "the survival of the fittest" was persistently carried out by the Arabs.

This interesting tradition is taken from a German work on Arab history. The faithful Rodouin believes that the Prophet-Prince, Mahomet himself, founded the Kaillan, the noblest race of horses they have. He says: "Mahomet, wishing to set aside from his stud the best mares in order to form a distinct and perfect breed, had them all kept for two entire days and nights without water. On a sudden, when almost mad with thirst, the mares were released and galloped with the swiftness of the winds to the well-known spring. When in view of the refreshing waters, by a preconcerted signal the trumpets sounded a war charge. At this well-known sound, five of the mares, forgetting in a moment the agonies of their thirst, left unstirred the banks of the spring and galloped to the imagined war. From these five mares the Arabs believe the noblest breeds have descended.

Another sketch of Persia states that the Arab puts this test upon his colts in order to find out if they are true to their lineage. The colt is mounted in its second year, when the Arab, on all other occasions most kind to his horses, puts it to a cruelly severe trial. The colt or filly is led out to be ridden for the first time. Its master springs upon its back and rides at full speed for perhaps fifty miles over sand and rock of the burning desert without one moment's respite. He then plunges it into water enough to swim, and if immediately after this it will eat as if nothing had happened, its purity of blood and staunchness are considered incontrovertible.

After making full allowances for Oriental exaggerations these stories, extending far back in the twilight of tradition, indicate that they had a clearly defined breeding plan and purpose.

Now, the effect of this pure blood of the horse of the desert upon the strains of Europe is marked and interesting. The first infusion of the blood of the Arab horse in Europe occurred upon a gigantic scale in the year 732, when the Arabian hordes overran southern Europe, and when the momentous and fateful battle was fought in France which decided whether our civilization should be Mohammedan or Christian. The Arabs suffered overwhelming and disastrous defeat. It is estimated by the best historians that seventy-five thousand of their fighting men were in the field on that memorable September day. Of course, they were mostly mounted, and in the rout and slaughter that followed their horses were captured and remained in the land.

The French people were cultivators of the soil, and by judicious feeding, breeding and the selection of type they have evolved a horse, the most active of all heavy breeds—the Percheron—that best suits their requirements, and that at the present time is also a source of revenue to that of his saddle and harness. In a similar manner the British have stock was greatly reinforced and benefited when in 1558, upon the defeat of the Spanish Armada, great numbers of Barbs and eastern horses were captured.

The development of the horse has been an expression of the direct experience of the various stages of growth and development through which mankind has passed. Prior to this, the age of chivalry in England called for a heavy or cart-type of horse. The knight, his rider, was coated in heavy mail, and the horse himself was covered with it. The horse of this period was gross and ill-shaped and the engravings show that he had long, wiry hair on his legs almost up to his belly.

The first racing in England dates back as a matter of record as far as 1512. These Barbs and eastern horses taken by the English in the defeat of the Armada suited admirably their taste and acted as a great leaven in refining their stock. When horses began to be bred for the race course their appearance according to the woodcuts and engravings of the time, began to undergo marked changes and characteristics. Reference to the works of eminent writers on the anatomy of the horse show that the Arab

SCHREIBER THOROUGHBREDS FOR AFRICA.

Lexington, Ky., January 7.—H. C. Gird, of Cape Town, South Africa, today bought fifteen three-year-old thoroughbred fillies and geldings from Barney Schreiber. They will be shipped from Sedalia, Mo., to St. Louis next Tuesday and from there they will go to Montreal on a special train with 125 head of mules to take ship for South Africa.Fred A. Forsythe today leased Kenland Farm from Mrs. Markey, of Virginia, a sister of J. O.
Keene, and will remove his thoroughbreds from Har-rodsburg to that farm, which is about four miles from Lexington on the Versailles road.
Several thoroughbreds belonging to James Mac-Manus, which have been running out at John S. Barbee's farm, were taken up today and shipped to Louisville.T. P. Hayes today took up Donerail, winner of the last Kentucky Derby.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

Bernard Corrigan, brother of Edward Corrigan, died at Kansas City Tuesday of heart disease at the age of sixty-seven.General Manager John Bachmeister of the Douglas Park and Latonia tracks, and President George M.
Hendrie of the Windsor Jockey Club, have gone to Naples, Fla., for their usual winter sojourn.

and his glorified descendant, the thoroughbred, have closer fibered muscles and denser, tougher, more elastic sinews, and a more closely knit bone structure than the heavier, slower breeds. A cross section of the bone of a thoroughbred and one of a draft horse would show the structure of the former dense and closely knit like ivory, the latter being porous and spongy in appearance. In breeding for speed and endurance the severe training and tests of the race course call for the greatest possible combination of strength with lightness and quickness of action.In 1727 a Racing Calendar was published, an organized Jockey Club was established in 1750, and the first stud book was issued in 1791. It is a marvelous thing to consider how three horses, out of all the countless thousands that have been used, tried and found wanting, stood out and established dynasties, which remain unchallenged today. In 1659 1660 Captain Ryerley, who fought in Ireland in King William's war, brought his charger home and he was known in the stud as Ryerley's Turk. The Darley Arabian was foaled about 1702. An English gentleman living in Aleppo was a member of a hunt club, was impressed by the character and individuality of the horse that he bought him and sent him to his brother, John Brewster Darley, of Aldby Park, near York. The Godolphin Arabian arrived in England about twenty-five years later. The opinion of the period being divided, one statement being that Mr. Coke, an Englishman, rescued him from pulling a watering cart in Paris, others saying that he was stolen from the stud of the French king, who placed no value upon him. At any rate, he was sent into England without a pedigree by Mr. Coke, who gave him to Roger Williams, proprietor of the St. James Coffee House, who in turn presented him to the Earl of Godolphin, in whose service he died. There is not a successful stallion in the world today, not a single horse of any merit as a sire, that does not trace in tail male line from one of these three Arab stallions. The dynasties are known as Herod, Godolphin, and Darley. The Arab horse of the period stood about fourteen hands and one-half. It can readily be seen how far the development of the modern thoroughbred has progressed by comparing the race horse of today with the descriptions given of the Godolphin, Darley and Ryerley Arabians. For the modern breeder to go back to the horse of the desert would be like present day transportation using the farm traction engine instead of the 100-ton mogul.I am informed that the English government, in order to encourage native breeders in India, gives them a handicap of 50 pounds for home-bred horses in the Victoria Cup, two and one-half miles. In fifty years they have won it a few times only.Now few of the breeders and it is safe to say none of the laymen, realize the enormous, the incredible amount of patient labor, intelligent study and the billions of money used in the past four hundred years to develop the wonderful perfected type of horse. As the race course was indispensable in accomplishing this in the past, so it is equally needed now and in the future to keep the breed from deteriorating. No man can tell by a visual examination if an animal has a weak heart, imperfect lungs, bad tendons and an impossible temper.
The race course is the only place where the infirmities of conformation, constitution, faint courage and infirmities of temper are searched out and only the best survive.At the risk of tiring you by making this paper too long I cannot refrain from quoting a passage in Count Leinhardt's "Horse Breeding Recrelections." Count Leinhardt was the head of the Imperial Government Stud of Germany and enjoys the reputation of being the foremost authority in Europe on this subject. So indispensable do the European governments value racing merit and soundness that they find it pays to have credible sums of money paid for thoroughbred stallions to breed to half-bred horses for cavalry remounts and army purposes. Count Leinhardt says:"The principal requisite in a good race horse is soundness, again soundness, and nothing but soundness; and the object of the thoroughbred is, to imbue the limbs, the constitution and the organs of the half-bred horse with that essential quality, and thereby enhance its capabilities.""The thoroughbred can, however, fulfill its mission only provided the yearly produce be continually subjected to severe trials in public. The only appropriate test provided for the cavalry and other breeders, is the race course, although its adversaries oppose it as too one-sided, and propose in its stead others of more or less impracticability. The last struggle for victory, in which culminates the exertion of the race, results from the co-operation of the intellectual, the physical and the mechanical qualities of the horse. The development of which combined power is higher and more reliable than any that can be obtained in the same animal by other means. The combination of these three qualities forms the value of the horse destined for fast work; the mechanical, in respect to the outward shape and construction of the body; the physical, in respect to the soundness and normal development of the digestive organs and motive power; the intellectual, or the will and the energy to put the other two into motion and persevere to the utmost. The attained speed is not the aim, but only the gauge, of the performance.""The grand ideal principle which places this test so incomparably higher than any other, based upon the individual opinion of one or more judges, is the absolute and blind justice, personified in the inflexible winning post, which alone decides on the race course, and the irrefutable certainty that neither passion or fashion, neither favor nor hatred, neither personal prejudice nor time-serving—frequently ob-servable in the awards at horse shows—have biased the decision of hotly contested struggles, as recorded in the Racing Calendar for the space of one hundred and seventy years. This it is that gives to the English thoroughbred horse a value for breeding purposes, unequalled and looked for in vain in any other species of animal creation.""A cardinal point, which continually maintains and regenerates the thoroughbred as a source of power and soundness, and places it, with regard to certainty of propagation, far above all other breeds, is the circumstance, that the thoroughbred is tried before it is sent to the stud.
What would become of the usefulness of our half-breds, what of our cavalry, without a continuance of crosses with stallions of pure blood, bred for stoutness and chosen on account of their proper essential qualities, so as to constantly renew the necessary steel in the breed?"In my opinion, our country has not fully taken advantage of the thoroughbred blood in building up the common horse. Almost every type of horse known today owes something at some period of its development to the thoroughbred. It is the intense vitalizing and refining influence on the coarser breeds. Our farms and our commerce today need
it. I can say by actual experience that the best carriage horses, and work horses that I have ever used were either all or part thoroughbred. The cavalry branch of our government is most inadequately equipped, so as to disgracefully equipped, and making most urgent appeals to Congress for assistance, and with the valuable aid of the Agricultural Department, have worked out a plan for the breeding of army remounts may be a source of revenue to many of our farmers, and a great boon to our government.I believe it advisable for our jack and mule breeders to avail themselves of this opportunity. Our farms and commerce need more and better horses.
In fact, there has never been a time within my knowledge when good useful horses were so much demanded and so scarce. I would suggest that every vitalizing and refining influence on the coarser breeds. Our farms and our commerce today need
it. I can say by actual experience that the best carriage horses, and work horses that I have ever
used were either all or part thoroughbred. The
cavalry branch of our government is most inadequately equipped, so as to disgracefully equipped, and
making most urgent appeals to Congress for assistance, and with the valuable aid of the Agricultural Department, have worked out a plan for the breed-
government.Statistics show that the use of the horse is increasing in large cities. So I wish deliberately to repeat that it seems to me it would be an economic crime for the American nation to be deprived of the benefit of the thoroughbred blood.In speaking or thinking of the thoroughbred horse, the mind naturally associates it with the thrilling and heroic exhibitions of courage and of fleetness on the turf. I have no apologies to offer in this connection, for the turf is an ancient and honorable institution. Like everything else in life, it has just as much dignity and character and honesty as we put into it. Every man, be he racing official, breeder, owner, trainer, jockey or stable boy should feel an individual sense of responsibility for the honor and welfare of the turf, and jealously protect it. It cannot be said any better or worse than racing associations, on the one hand, and the owners, trainers and jockeys on the other hand, make it.
It is far from a one-sided proposition and a positive loyalty in all things is due from each to the other.So in speaking of the future of the thoroughbred, and the same may be said of the standard-bred and the harness horse, the duty of the association and the duty of the associations owe to the public who support it, and the really and hearty co-operation your enlightened self interest should compel you to render to it.

The Juarez track is in an extremely fast condition this winter and already most of the track records have been reduced since the present meeting began.
One of the performances, that of Iron Mask, represents a new American record, while others equal existing American records. The Juarez track records for the various distances at which races have been run, revised to date, are as follows:

THE AMERICAN RACING MANUAL OF 1914.

The American Racing Manual for 1914 is now in process of preparation and will be issued early in January. It will contain all the features that have appeared in past editions. This publication, which is annually in great demand among those interested in the turf, is an excellent and low-priced book of nearly 500 pages, holding information obtainable in no other publication. It is simply a mine of records.
One of the new features of this book is a tabulated compilation of the great races of England, France and Australia, which covers the winners and other details from their institution. This is a feature that was never before.

 Winner—Ch. f. by Star Shoot—Lady Alberta (trained by P. T. Chinn).
 Went to post at 2:16. At post 4 minutes. Start good and slow. Won driving; second and third the same. STAR BERTA began fast on the outside and, after being saved behind the leaders until they turned into the homestretch, raced into the lead and won doing her best. VA VA was far back in a pocket until on the last turn and coming with a great rush when clear, was gaining at the end. DAHLGREN also closed a gap and finished fast. PRETTY DALE tired after making the pace fast to the stretch. HOLBERG closed a gap in the last half. VAN HORN and SAN BERNITO showed speed.
 Overweights—Dahlgren, 3 pounds; Pretty Dale, 3; Society Bird, 1; Pox Mary, 2; Holberg, 1.

 Winner—B. g. by Pursey D.—Anne Buckingham (trained by G. J. Miller).
 Went to post at 2:45. At post 2 minutes. Start good and slow. Won easily; second and third driving. WHEELER began slowly and, after coming around on the outside into second place, dwelt a moment in the stretch, then came again and won going away. KALLINIA closed a gap into the lead in the stretch, then faded, but held on gamely. HASSON also made up much ground and finished with a rush and the same applies to FERRONA. STEVESTA closed a big gap, but came wide through the final quarter. PARNELL GIRL set a fast pace to the homestretch and faded. GIMLI quit badly and can do much better. Scratched—12928 Senator James, 107; 12911 Lady Kille, 106; 12982 Crusty, 93.
 Overweights—Parnell Girl, 2 pounds; SteveSta, 5; Tyree, 2.

 Winner—Ch. f. by General Roberts—Rose Cherry (trained by J. F. Richardson).
 Went to post at 3:13. At post 1 minute. Start good and slow. Won driving; second and third the same. BING, after being outpaced early, closed up fast in the stretch and, standing a drive gamely, outstayed MILTON ROBLEE in a close finish. MILTON ROBLEE ran a good race and finished with a rush. SUPERL faded into the stretch a trifle wide and finished close up. CAPTAIN BURNS made a grand effort and raced MANGANSE into exhaustion, then tired himself. MANGANSE set a hot pace to the stretch and, under punishment, tired badly in the last sixteenth.
 Overweights—Milton Roblee, 1 pound; Superl, 3.

 Winner—B. g. by Yankee Gun—Black Tail (trained by J. H. Mead).
 Went to post at 3:44. At post 2 minutes. Start good and slow. Won driving; second and third the same. BROOKFIELD raced to the front gamely on the backstretch and, making the pace fast, withstood a pressing challenge from ZIM at the end. The latter moved up in the stretch and made a resolute finish, but could not quite get up. COLONEL MARCHANT ran a good race and was fighting the finish out at the end. VESTED RIGHTS tired. MEADOW was going fast in the final strides.
